Tom Moraeses, Director/Coach

The Augusta Recreation and Parks Department, with assistance from area law enforcement agencies, implemented the Augusta Boxing Association/Augusta Police Athletic League (P.A.L.) in an effort to curtail drug abuse and crime among young adults and children.

This program uses boxing as a tool to attract young people to build their confidence, develop self discipline, learn to function as a team, develop good sportsmanship and experience the rewards of always striving to do their best.

The program is preventative in nature as opposed to rehabilitative. The majority of the participants have had no prior contact with the court system.

Did you know walking can make you feel good, gives you more energy, helps you sleep better, reduces stress, keeps your heart strong, helps you manage weight and preserves bone strength.

All you need is a good pair of shoes that provide support, loose fitting clothing and a bottle of water and you are ready to visit one of the Augusta Recreation and Parks Department's walking tracks.

The Savannah River, the lifeblood of early Augusta, has not always been a gentle host. The main entrances to Riverwalk are at Eighth and Tenth Streets, which are highlighted with granite markers detailing the height and date of Augusta's most devastating floods.

Riverwalk's lower level meanders along the banks of the Savannah and includes a children's play area and a Japanese garden, a gift from Augusta's sister city, Takarazuka. Points of interest include a replica paddlewheel and the Jesse Norman Amphitheatre, a 1600-seat outdoor performance facility that hosts local, regional and national performances.

The Augusta Common, home of the James Oglethorpe Statue, is a one acre green space park located between Broad and Reynolds Street in beautiful downtown Augusta. The Common, the heart of the city center, is the gathering place for festivals, special events and everyday activities. Staging can be used on either the Broad Street or Reynolds Street side of the Common.
